

KELBY LOVE

Wildlife Painting

Kelby Love never doubted the focus of his life. From childhood, his interest in nature, particularly fish was enthusiastic and comprehensive, due to the many trips to the river with his father. Kelby has observed, sketched, and painted animals since he could remember and it has translated into firsthand knowledge of his subjects, which he transforms into exacting detail for his clients Field & Stream, Outdoor Life and National Geographic. The artwork he creates conveys a sense of inner vitality that makes it more than mere windows into the natural world; they place the viewer into a particular living moment.
